LITERACY AND NUMERACY

The purpose of our literacy and numeracy classes is to fill any potential academic gaps in maths, reading and writing.

We enrich classroom teaching through the provision of extra support, taking into consideration each student's learning difference. This is achieved within an environment, where students are able to comfortably express their needs and academic concerns in small learning groups.

We support our students in literacy and mathematics by providing links to the curriculum, with evidence-based techniques, assisting with informed and targeted teaching. Our highly qualified S.E.N. teachers follow a differentiated approach and use multi-sensory methods to faciliate better understanding.

STUDY AND ORGANISATIONAL SKILLS

For some students, conventional support falls short of helping them build the skills and confidence necessary to meet their full potential. This is why CDL is pleased to offer a redesigned and enhanced study skills programme for this coming year. The new programme explores a greater range of organizational skills training, tailored to address the most relevant concerns and challenges your child may face at specific points in his or her academic life.

In order for our students to reach their goals, close collaboration with classroom teachers and regular feedback from our S.E.N. teachers is essential. These classes are planned and delivered to suit students' learning style and will be regularly reviewed to ensure their relevance.

The new programme begins with a self-evaluation and includes instructions in the following skills:

- Feedback and goal setting
- Active listening
- Improving memory
- Time management
- Note taking
- Exam preparation, including revision techniques.

LEARNING GROUPS

Collège du Léman's Special Educational Needs (S.E.N.) department offers a range of paid classes to help students with mild to moderate learning differences, reach their full potential.

These classes are taught by our qualified S.E.N. teachers. All of them are certified in Special Education with extensive experience in supporting students with learning differences, such as dyslexia, dyspraxia, dyscalculia and ADD or ADHD.

Our students are taught in small groups, where progress is monitored closely and provision altered as necessary to suit their individual learning style and needs. Learning takes place in our classrooms, which are equiped with interactive whiteboards.

“ Dear S.E.N. team, Thank you!

I just want to say that the support you are giving my daughter, made her another girl. More confident and happier. She feels embraced by you and it brings her a new perspective for learning. Thank you for transforming her life at school! ”
